fisherman and SABC-TV reporter Ed Herbst brings high-profile recognition to Garrett Evans's writing and story-telling skills. Readers will enjoy Evans's accounts of his favourite places, books and authors, and his charming portraits of his relationships, and the fishermen, hunters, writers and scholars he has known. Garrett is more than an angler and hunter, he is also a poet and philosopher, aware not only of the beauty of the scenes he describes, but also of their transience.

SA readers and foreign tourists will enjoy this book as the writing covers experiences in the US (where Garrett was born), the UK, Europe and New Zealand, as well as South Africa, in all of which countries he has spent many 'Huckleberry days'.

The short pieces each hold attention with their concentrated, story-telling moments, and their charm lingers. This bedside book will make a fine gift for anyone with a taste both for the outdoors and good writing.
